

The National Security Education Center was created by merging five LANL institutes—Engineering, Materials Design, Multiscale Materials Studies, Information Science and Technology, and Advanced Studies. Benefits are expected to include enhanced academic cooperation, scientific collaboration and scholarship, and technical workforce development.

National Security Education Center created from merger of Lab institutes